Hello, Grandma Ruth!

Hello Mom! June was a big month. Daniel graduated, Ava can drive, and Leo has decided he loves the pool. Uncle Joe caught the biggest fish of the summer, or so he says. The tomatoes are finally red. We think of you every Sunday. Turn the page to see what everyone has been up to.

BIG NEWS

Daniel graduates from CU Boulder

Daniel — your grandson, Boulder

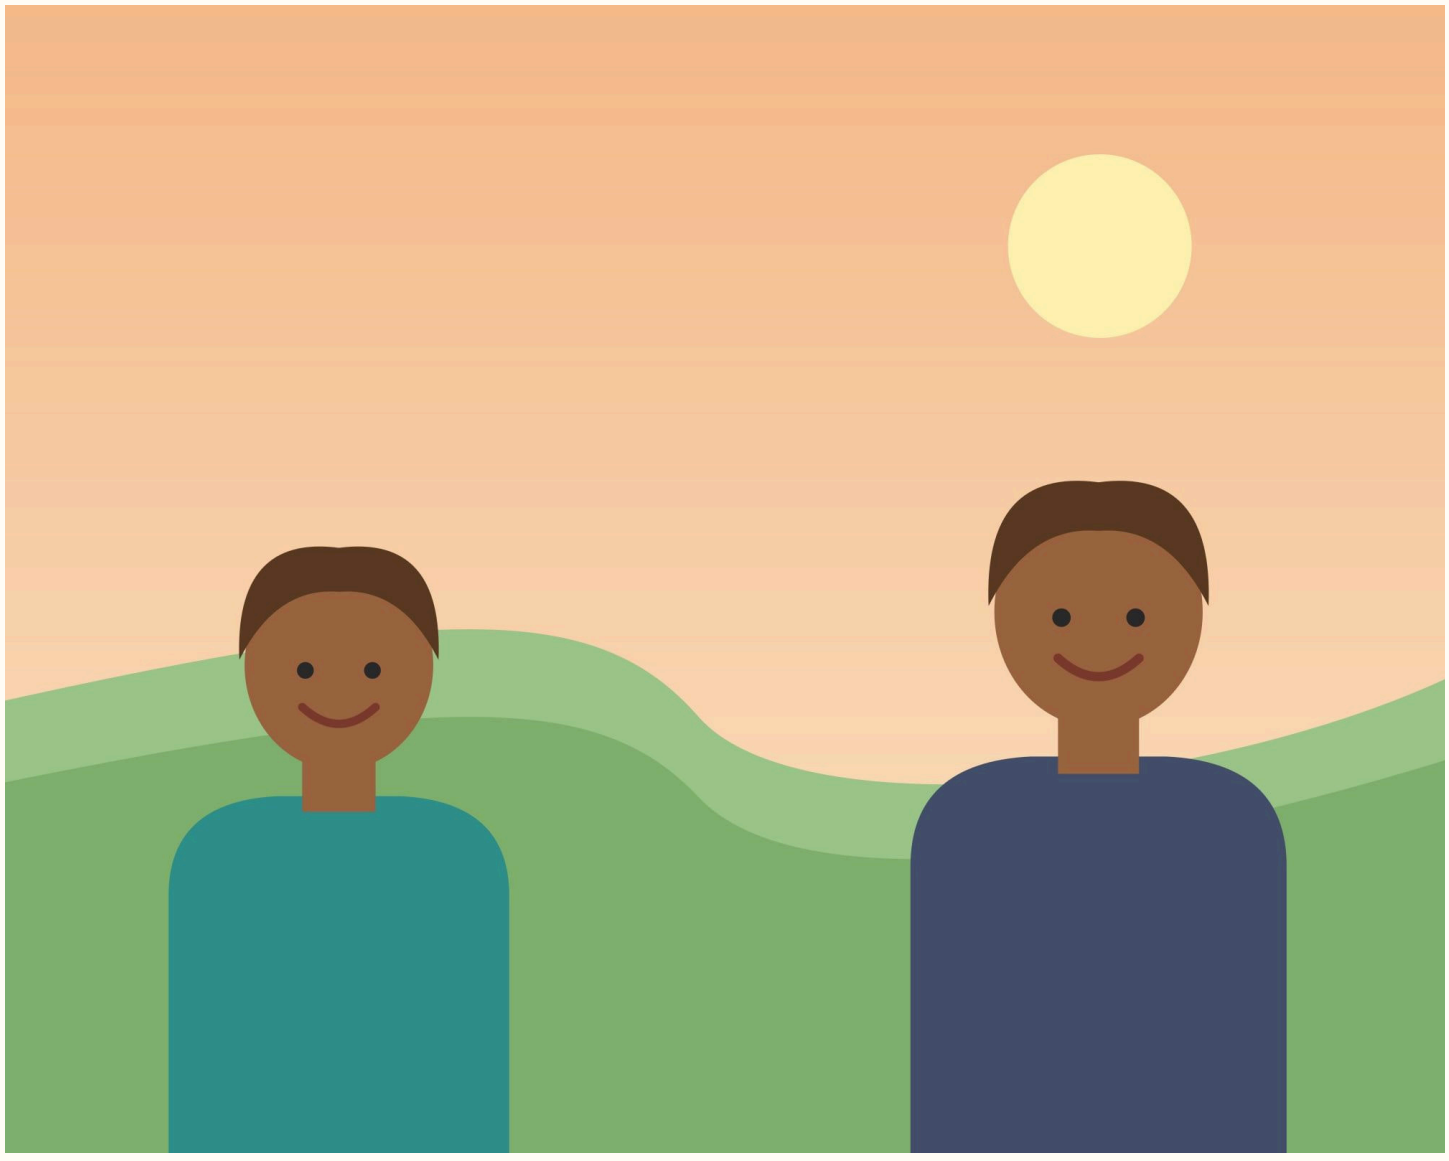

Four years, two changes of major, one degree. Thank you for every card you sent with a five-dollar bill inside. I kept all of them.

BIG NEWS

Ava passed her driving test

Ava — your granddaughter, Chicago

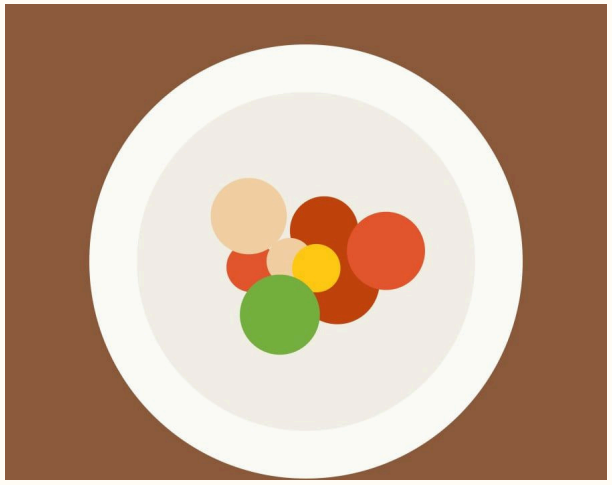

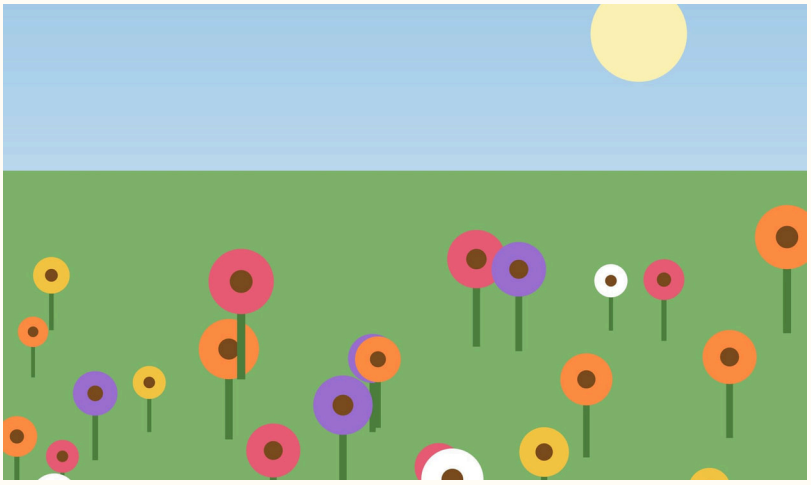

First try! Parallel parking was the scary part. Mom says I can drive us to Tampa next summer if I practice on the highway.

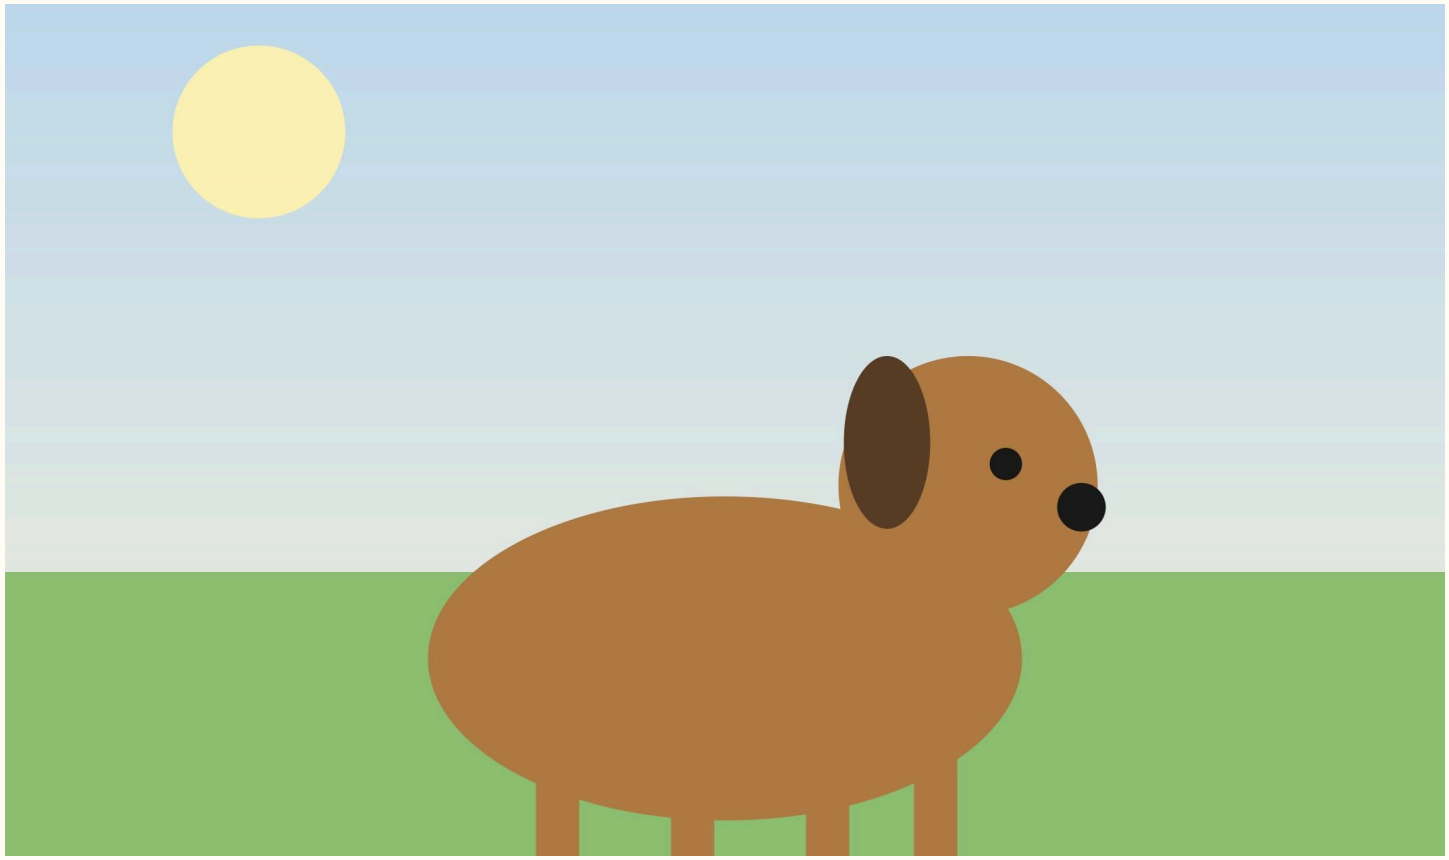

Emily — your daughter-in-law, Denver

Grace — your niece, Atlanta · shared by Sarah

Grace sent this from her new garden in Atlanta. The peaches are hers, and she promises a box for your birthday.

Joe — your brother, Orlando

Fishing with the old crowd

Walt, Eddie and I took the boat out past the causeway on Tuesday. Eddie brought sandwiches his wife made, which means we ate well for once. The fish were slow until noon, and then all at once they weren't. Walt landed a snook, Eddie lost two lures, and I caught a grouper you could serve to the whole church.

We grilled it that night at Walt's place. His grandson set up a speaker and played the songs we used to dance to at the Legion hall. Nobody danced, but everybody sang. I thought of you and Harold the whole evening.

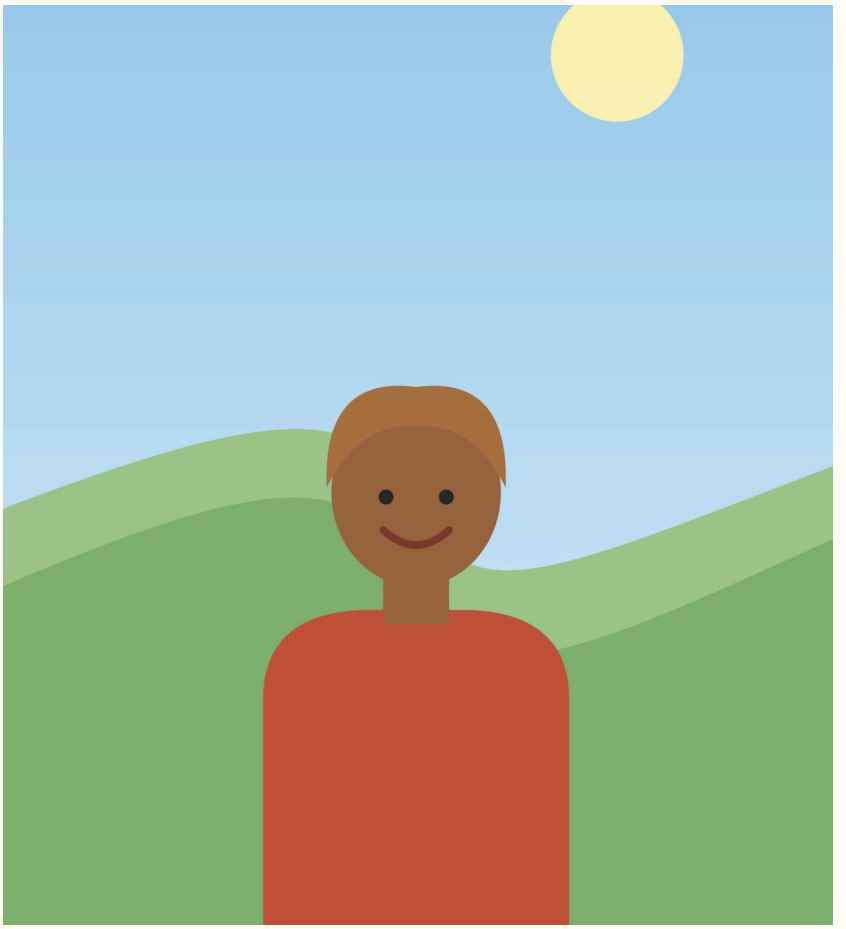

Mike — your son, Denver

Leo's first swim lesson

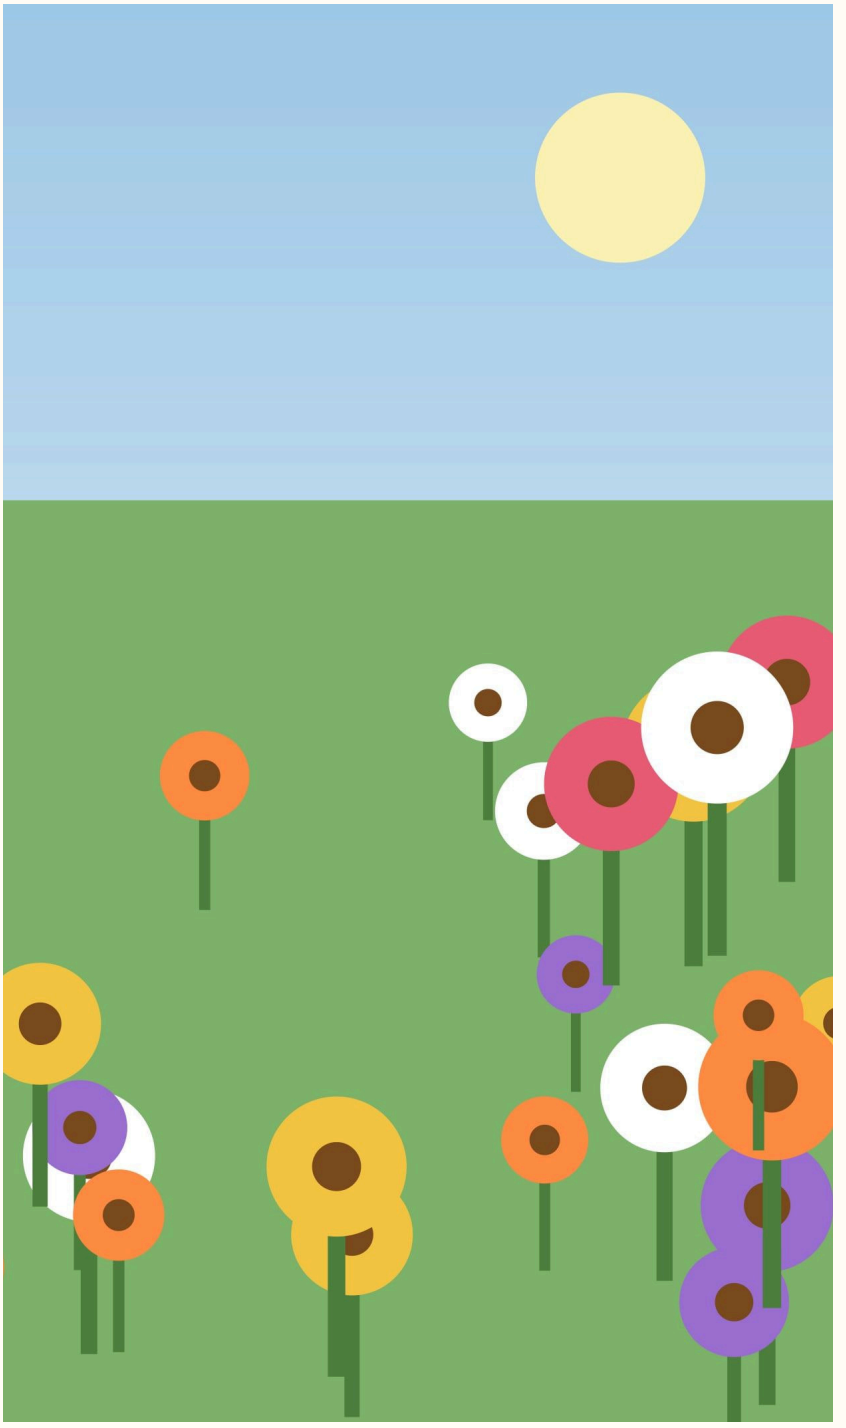

He refused to get in for ten minutes, then refused to get out. The teacher says he kicks like a frog.

Sarah — your daughter, Chicago

The tomatoes are in

The garden finally came through. Tom ate six of them standing at the sink. I'm saving the rest for your salsa recipe.

We asked everyone: What's the best thing you ate this month?

Sarah

Tom's grilled peaches with vanilla ice cream.

Daniel

Free pizza after graduation. Every slice tasted like freedom.

Mike

A green chile burger at a gas station near Pueblo. No regrets.

Ava

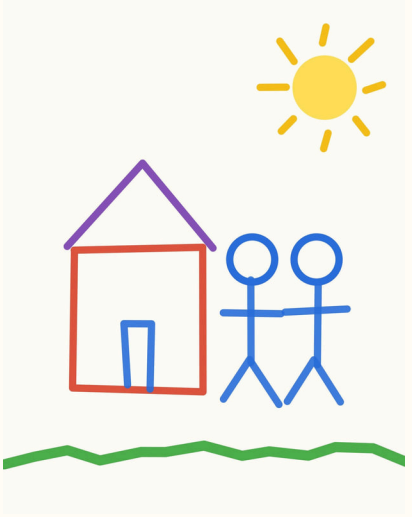

Your lemon bars, from the recipe card. Mine were almost as good.

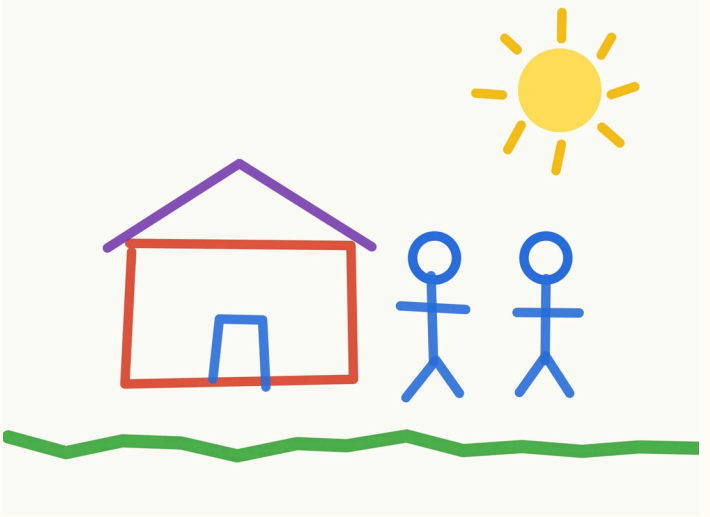

Joe

Fresh grouper, caught that morning.
